GIVING TEETH TO UN ASSEMBLY

(Winchester Star)

Any U. N. General Assembly formula providing for the cessation of Korean hostilities and the reconstruction of a united Korean nation could add immeasurably to the prestige and inevitably to the power—of that body. The U. S. delegation is bending every effort to precipitate such a formula.

Another attempt to push into a dominant role is the U. S. proposal that member nations should earmark components of their armed forces for a U. N. police force under the assembly or its Interim Committee (Little Assembly). The motive behind our attempts to give teeth to the Assembly is clear: Russia has no veto there.

The Assembly's present authority, technically, is limited to discussion and recommendation. But few member nations care to fly in the face of world opinion as expressed by a resolution adopted by a two-thirds majority in the Assembly. Russia has had hard sledding in the Assembly from the beginning.

Moreover, it was through the office of the Soviet-boycotted Interim Committee that the U. N. Korean Commission was established and free elections held in South Korea. And it was the on-the-spot report of this Korean Commission that influenced members of the Security Council in June to approve American military support for South Korea.

The efforts of Western nations to bypass the Security Council for the Assembly only reflect on an international scale an almost universal parliamentary trend. In experience the more popularly constituted Lower House of a bicameral legislature almost inevitably saps the Upper House of power.

A notable example is the decline of the British House of Lords; the French Senate is a second example. The United States Senate is an exception.

One delegation at the U. N. San Francisco Conference in April, 1945, pointed to the danger of the Security Council's becoming "frozen" by the veto power. Francis Forde, deputy Prime Minister of Australia, declared: "The powers and functions of the General Assembly in regard to the settlement of disputes should be clarified — Ultimately it should become the central organ of the forum in which the conscience of the peoples of the world should have its most potent expression."

AUTOS ON THE CAMPUS

(Alexandria Gazette)

Brown University joins the many colleges limiting the student use of automobiles. Brown now forbids freshmen to own cars if they live in the campus area. The university authorities seem to think that by the time they become sophomores, they will no longer need such restraints. Some outsiders may take leave to doubt this.

Campus restrictions on automobiles may often be as much for the purpose of reducing the number of vehicles cluttering the area as for limiting student movement. But there also is a sound supposition that the freshmen student has much to do and should be as free as possible from distractions. As he advances he presumably learns to strike his own balance between work and other interests. If he does not, the college is failing in a major element of education.

Mrs. Mabel Kitchen, 1650 Amsterdam, Cincinnati, Ohio, "Before I started taking HADACOL I had aches and pains of neuritis in my shoulders, my back and arms. I could hardly move without having those terrible pains. Then I heard about HADACOL. After the second bottle the pains and aches were about gone. I'm now starting my fourth bottle and am on top of the world. I eat well and, best of all, the aches and pains are completely gone." (Mrs. Kitchen is a very smart woman because she relieves the REAL CAUSE of her neuritis pains due to such deficiencies. HADACOL often brings a wonderful improvement within a few days' time.

Mrs. J. Sciesinski, 514 Kruger, Ottumwa, Iowa, writes: "My daughter, Marilyn Sue, is 9 years old and for some time lacked pep, had a poor appetite, was generally run-down. Since giving her HADACOL, we have noticed wonderful results . . . she has a much better appetite, eats everything on the table and doesn't seem tired like she used to. Incidentally, she likes to take HADACOL too." (HADACOL is a great 'builder-upper' for sick, nervous, puny kids whose systems lack precious Vitamins B_1, B_2, Iron and Niacin. A big improvement in their well-being is often noticed within a few days' time after taking the great new HADACOL.)

Mr. Henry Angel, RD No. 1, Springfield, Ohio, "I used to suffer great pain from neuritis aches in all parts of my body, especially in my legs, arms and shoulders. I never got any real relief until I tried HADACOL. After taking several bottles, my pain is all gone. And I'm working every day." (Now there's a smart man! Mr. Angel took HADACOL and relieved the REAL CAUSE of his neuritis pains because they were due to such deficiencies. HADACOL is helping thousands upon thousands of grateful men and women troubled this way. Why don't you give HADACOL a chance to help you? Start TAKING it today!)

Paratrooper Sets Record With 107 Drops in One Day

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. — A former paratrooper from Dillon, Mont., has set a world's record for parachute leaps in a single day by making 107 drops.

Averaging better than one jump every 6 minutes and exhausting seven pilots, Sgt. John W. Swetlich, broke the record with his 106th jump 10 hours to the minute after his first leap.

He successfully topped the official record of 75 leaps by a Yugoslav in London and the unofficial record of 105 leaps claimed by Juan Iriarte of Buenos Aires.

He made his leaps into a plowed field. He wore a sweat shirt and regulation paratroop trousers, boots, and helmet. He taped his arms where the chute straps bound him.

After each jump, a jeep and a pickup truck met him. The jeep rushed him back to the Piper Cub plane which took him aloft again, while the truck took his chutes to the hangar where six men were kept busy repacking them.

His only complaint at the start was, "If I can survive those jeep rides, I'll be O. K."

Swetlich twisted his ankle and strained his knee on the 51st jump, and slowed down long enough to have his right leg taped. After the 99th jump his aides, all buddies from the 82nd Airborne Division, decided he should jump from 900 feet instead of 700 because his reactions were slower. From 900 feet he would have time to use his emergency parachute if necessary.

He took only two 5-minute breaks throughout the grind, and ate only a milk shake with three eggs in it and a few candy bars.

110-Year-Old Maryland Woman Registers to Vote

BALTIMORE, Md. — A registrar at the office of the board of supervisors of elections was so startled he had to ask the lady her age a second time.

"One hundred ten," answered Mrs. Annie Ross without batting an eye.

She went on to explain she was born in slavery on Maryland's east shore during the term of President Van Buren. This was the first time she had registered to vote because "nobody influenced me before."

She said she owed her good health to "a little gin now and then."

Nephew of King Sells Estate to Pay Taxes

LEEDS, England — Nobility throughout the world has been having a tough time of it for a number of years, for the most part finding themselves without people to rule.

In England, however, it is a little different. English nobility is finding it difficult to pay taxes. The latest example is the Earl of Harewood nephew of King George, who has been forced to sell a third of his ancestral estates at auction to pay inheritance taxes.

Most of the happy buyers were his old tenants—farmers and tradespeople. A total of 7,000 of his 22,000 acres were sold to pay the taxes, amounting to approximately $2,196,-00.

The Earl told his tenants he would like to have them bid in the homes and fields they had rented.

Mrs. Annie Mary Ridsale, 83, bought the cottage she had lived in 46 years. When it was knocked down to her for $589, she said, "I am so happy I could walk home the 10 miles to Leeds."

The post office, with 6¼ acres, went for $7,450 and the shoemaker bought his shop for $168.

One tenant paid $53,800 for two farms his family had worked on for around 300 years.

Single farms brought as much as $9,150 for 175 acres and a house. Two others were withdrawn from sale because bids were too low. A King George III period stone house dating from American Revolutionary times brought $5,880.

Old-Fashioned Coal Oil Aviation Fuel of Future

NEW YORK—Alexander Ogston, member of the aviation department of a large petroleum company, believes that kerosene, the old-fashioned coal oil that grandmother used in her wick lamp and still used in many farm stoves, is the fuel of the future airplane.

Ogston said that while the conventional type of airplane engines would be built for at least 10 years, eventually air liners will be jet propelled. He believes kerosene will fulfill the needs of a safe and economic fuel.

There is little doubt that a fuel of the general characteristics of kerosene comes closer to satisfying the requirements than any other, he says.

He admitted that there have been some "severe fires" following the crash of a jet fighter plane, using kerosene, but that such crashes have been where the aircraft has hit the ground at high speed, causing complete disintegration of the structure.

Ogston said research was now under way to find means to prevent kerosene from freezing at extremely low temperatures. That would be necessary if military planes using kerosene are to operate in the arctic regions.
